~ No. 7/18: THE SCHENGEN AGREEMENT ~

INTRO

This issue of V&C is all about the Schengen Agreement. The name of the agreement derives from the place of signature: On June 15th, 1985 the countries of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Germany reached an agreement in Schengen, Luxembourg with the following key sentence: "Internal borders may be crossed at any point without checks on persons being carried out." In the following years further states joined the agreement. Currently, 26 "Schengen states" belong to the so-called "Schengen Area". In 2007 the Eastward-Enlargement of the agreement took place, eliminating border controls to countries such as Poland and the Czech Republic. On March 1st, 2008 Switzerland joined the agreement. At the 30th anniversary of the Schengen Agreement in 2015, Greek EU-Commissioner for Internal Affairs, Mr. Avramopoulos declared grandiosely: "The creation of the Schengen Area is one of the greatest achievements of the EU and it is irreversible." This V&C-issue exposes the dubious practices of politicians and the media to hide the real and fatal consequences of the implementation of the Schengen Agreement: unbridled illegal immigration, a drastic increase in criminality and an increasingly vulnerable population.

Schengen-Eastward-Enlargement: Politics and media rejoice – the population suffers zwt. Shortly after the openings of the borders in 2007 between Germany and several Eastern countries*, politics and leading media commented positively on the Schengen-Eastward-Enlargement. The German magazine 'Der Stern' headlined: "A historic event for Germany". 'Der Tagesspiegel' rejoiced: "Brandenburg is pleased about Poland joining Schengen." Angela Merkel spoke of a historic moment, Poland's Prime Minister Tusk of a 'Triumph of Freedom'. A few years later the leading media had to revise their position: "10 years after the Eastward-Enlargement of the EU, companies are fortifying themselves behind high fences in the border area, private individuals put bars over their windows and protect themselves with alarm systems. The perceived uncertainty is tangible." was to be read in the 'Mitteldeutsche Zeitung'. 'Der Focus' reported about exploding numbers of burglary. 'Der Spiegel' described the region of Upper Lusatia in Saxony as "released for looting". Neighbors would not visit each other anymore because of being afraid of falling victim to a burglary while they were absent. In Upper Lusatia cars, tools, drainpipes, even shoes were stolen from the hallways. Was the initial enthusiasm of politics and the media about the Eastward-Enlargement really honest – or just a strategy to quiet down a skeptical population? [1]

They point their fingers at Schengen, but what they mean is the EU."

The Federal Government disregarded the dangers

tz. Eight months before the Schengen-Eastward-Enlargement, the Federal Government's fraction "Die Linke" asked the following question: "Is it true that the Federal Government assumes an increased safety risk at the borders with Poland and the Czech Republic, and if it is true, which reasons does the Federal Government give for that?" The answer of the government: "Experiences at the western internal borders of the Schengen area show that despite corresponding compensatory measures, illegal immigration and cross-border criminality inside the entire Schengen area have to be expected." Thus, the government knew at that time already that illegal immigration and criminality would rise. Nevertheless, interior minister Schäuble had gone so far as to promise a gain in security. Is this not a willful deception of the people? Which aims do German politicians pursue if they knowingly put the German people at such risk? And why are they not held accountable for the damage caused by this? [2]

Deceiving the population by premature all-clear

mol./ukn. Only three months after the Eastward-Enlargement, the German Ministry of the Interior gave the all-clear: "The concerns of the people close to the borders have not come true. The first 100 days have shown this. Our policemen do a good and reliable job." The leading media disseminated headlines such as "Open border reduces criminality" ('Die Welt'). The chief of the Federal Police Union, Ruediger Reedwisch, bashed this proceeding: "There is still a lack of reliable numbers regarding the development of petty crime in order to generate a picture of the situation", the Ministry of the Interior was said to withhold official statistics and to muzzle the police stations. In 2012 the police' score turned out bitterly. "Cross-border criminality" – car theft, burglaries, trafficking, arms and drug trade – had increased tremendously. The Czech-Bavarian border became the main trading zone for crystal meth*, while cars, construction machinery and tractors disappeared on a large scale along the German-Polish border, solar parks and cash machines were plundered as well. Conclusion: First the people close to the borders were deviously deluded about "Schengen" – and then they were left alone with the consequences! [3]

G7-controls reveal the problems of open borders

thz. To protect the G7 summit in Upper Bavaria, border checks on Poland and the Czech Republic were introduced in May and June 2015. In doing so, criminals were arrested every hour. The results of the only 4-week border controls were: 8,600 breaches of the Residence Act, 430 refused entries, 150 detected crimes and 60 arrest warrants. This is twice as much as is normally picked up nationwide during this period. The fact that these controls are only made when it comes to protecting politicians, as at the G7 summit, is a scandal to the ordinary people! [4]

"Where there are no more borders, criminality also moves without boundaries."

Reinhold Gall, Minister of the Interior of Baden-Wuerttemberg 2015

Lack of exercise of state power leads to anarchy*

kno. On the website "Cashkurs"*** author Thomas Trepnau urgently warns that Germany continues not exercising state authority when continuously hundreds of thousands of illegal immigrants are allowed to enter. Trepnau explains this on the basis of the general political theory of Georg Jellinek: A state consists of the three elements of state territory, state people and state authority. The state territory is defined by its borders, and these are to be protected and not to be exposed to caprice and arbitrariness externally and internally. The

Are crime statistics falsified to reassure the population?

ukn./tz. In the criminal statistics of Brandenburg, in 2014, about 4,000 committed crimes are missing! Reason: An Organization Directive required to combine serial offenses into a single case. Conversely, journalist Udo Ulfkotte* found out that a single resolved burglary offense was "sold" to the population as three different resolved offenses (a burglary, a trespass and a property damage), probably to make the success statistics look better. Also, crimes are often already considered "resolved" when an act can be assigned to a suspect only. According to the chairman of the German Federal Criminal Investigation Bureau, the politicians have been doing window dressing for years. It is revealed that 75 % of all burglaries and 90 % of all acts in the field of sexual offenses and cybercrime go unreported. Particularly noteworthy is the following: Federal Interior Minister Thomas de Maizière is said to have instructed the heads of the state police authorities not to pay too much attention in the statistics to crimes committed by refugees. Police-woman Tania Kambouri** expressed that the statistics of the BKA*** could be forged in order not to stir up fear in the population. Is the population to be given a calming pill by such manipulations? [5]

Switzerland: Schengen Membership bought at high price

mab. The Swiss population was moved into acceptance of the Schengen Treaty with a propaganda blitz that cost 20 Million francs. The voting campaign was financed with federal funds and by business associations such as „Economiesuisse“, amongst others. In order to assert its interests, „Economiesuisse“ promised amongst other things that the treaty would create more security. Reality looks different: Schengen has resulted in a massive increase of cross border criminality! Between 2008 (the year Schengen was put into effect) and 2009 burglaries increased by 22 % and from 2011 to 2012 again by 15,7 %. 20 – 40 % more burglaries compared to the previous year took place in 2012 depending on the region. Thus, the Swiss people were duped twice: First they had to co-finance the Pro-Schengen propaganda with their tax payments and now they must bear the consequences of the heightened criminality rate. [6]

Closing Point •

In light of the worldwide cancellation of borders – not only in the Schengen area – the German book- and film author Gerhard Wisnewski talks of a major „Megatrend“ being behind everything, namely the destruction of human life. Borders – as a structural characteristics of the human society as well as all human life – are specifically being destroyed: national, financial, economical, biological and social borders. When structural features like borders are taken away, then life itself will be destroyed. Without boundaries there would be no life.

Commit yourself together with us to stop this trend of targeted destruction of life. A first step can be the sharing of this important counter-voice. [8]

The editors (thz./kno./mol./jj.)

same applies to state authority. If a state does not exercise its power, by illegally allowing people to invade a hundred thousand times, that state loses an indispensable element of its statehood, i.e. the state stops being "a state". The dissolution of the state is followed by anarchy. The approach of this anarchy is already evident, through the increased occurrence of brutal assaults, personal injuries, rape and even homicides. Thomas Trepnau raises serious charges against those responsible: "Those who allowed or even promoted uncontrolled immigration have the blood of the victims on their hands killed or injured by illegal immigrants." [7]
