THE PEOPLE HAVE A RIGHT TO VOICE AND COUNTERVOICE

~ No. 1/20: VACCINATION ~

INTRO

Who has not dreamed of a better world? A world without diseases, suffering, war, poverty, hunger and environmental degradation. It is precisely this good will of the people, the urge for the better and the striving for perfection that the so-called think tanks take advantage of in order to assert hidden interests. The misused strive for peace was evident for example in regards to the Iraq wars. The incubator lie and the lie that Iraq has weapons of mass destruction galvanized public opinion into a war mood against Iraq. In truth, it was about US control over Iraqi oil. And while the world's public believes that the IMF* would grant poor countries loans to help them get back on their feet, it is only truly about plundering their resources. This issue shows that the real motivations are no less ambiguous in the health care sector, e.g. when it comes to vaccinations.

Less protection through vaccination rl. The compulsory measles vaccination, it is argued, should be introduced to protect those who themselves cannot be vaccinated. These are, for example, babies who are vaccinated against measles for the first time only at the age of eleven months and who, according to official

How harmful vaccinations are pg. When the Freedom of Information Act came into force, the Paul Ehrlich Institute (PEI) also had to release its data on vaccination complications. From 2001 to 2019, according to this data, 45,379 reported cases of vaccination complications were registered. These include 22,450 serious cases and even also 391 deaths after vaccinations. This means that three serious vaccination incidents were registered daily, and one death due to vaccination every 2.5 weeks. However, it should be taken into account that this is only the tip of the iceberg, as even the PEI says that only 5% of all cases are reported. Nevertheless, the PEI has the nerve to say that vaccines are safe. After all the facts have been disclosed, it should remain a matter for the patient him or herself (or, in the case of children, the decision of the parents) to assess whether the vaccination(s) is safe and whether it should be given. For ultimately it is the patient or the parents of the child that have to bear the consequences in cases of vaccination damage. [1] opinion, allegedly only have a really complete protection after the second vaccination. Infants, however, have a passive immunity which they have received through their mother on the path of life. According to the Robert Koch Institute, the central institution for disease prevention, vaccinated mothers have a lower antibody level compared to the naturally infected. For infants,

Compulsory vaccination = incapacitation of citizens ch./uh./fw./pa. In the name of the German Society for Environmental and Human Toxicology (DGUHT), Dr. Claus Scheingraber speaks out against a state compulsory vaccination, which in his opinion would be equivalent to the incapacitation of citizens and justifies it as follows: The State declares its citizens incapable of assessing the life risks they can take for themselves and their families. Everyone has the opportunity to inform themselves comprehensively about effects and side effects. Among others, the following serious side effects are documented: Autism, flu, diabetes, cancer, nerve damage, paralysis, neurodemitis. The review of 16 vaccines found that vaccines contained nickel, arsenic, aluminium and even uranium. The DGUHT's statements show that the compulsory vaccination would not have to be introduced to protect the population - rather, it would need real information about the dangers of vaccinations, so that, as Dr. Scheingraber points out, citizens can make their own decisions. [2]

this means that since the advent of the measles vaccination they have less and less passive immunity, i.e. protection against this disease. Thus, the compulsory measles vaccination is based on the deficits due to the measles vaccinations. [3]

The measles paradox

gz. Although in some countries the measles vaccination rate has risen to almost 100%, even there vaccinated people contract measles. For example, in the Chinese province of Zhejiang, measles, mumps and rubella occur often, although the vaccination coverage is over 99%. 26% even contracted the disease despite two or more measles vaccine doses. Between 2005 and October 2013, 596,391 measles cases and 368 measles deaths were reported in China. This means 53 measles cases and 0.03 dead by measles per million inhabitants per year. In Germany, the average has been 12 measles cases over the past few years and about 0.005 dead by measles per million inhabitants per year. These facts clearly indicate that a compulsory measles vaccination is by no means justified. [4]

Biased TOKEN study

str. Unexpected deaths in children between the ages of 2 and 24 months in connection with Sanofi-Pasteur's six-fold vaccine "Hexavac" led to the suspicion that there might be a link between six-fold vaccinations and the risk of a sudden, unexpected death. The TOKEN study of the Robert Koch Institute (RKI) was to record these deaths fully from July 2005 to July 2008 and to examine a possible connection to six-fold vaccines*. The manufacturer of "Hexavac" was a major financier of the study and was informed about relevant findings. The evaluation method was changed considerably in the course of the study, so that not all reported deaths were included in the statistics. But even according to the new foundational data, 27 children died in the first two weeks after the six-fold vaccination and another 102 children died within six months. Nevertheless, the RKI comes to the conclusion that there is no risk of a sudden death after a six-fold vaccination. In court, one would speak of bias here. [8]

Tetanus vaccination: No immunization against toxins

pg. The tetanus vaccination belongs to the recommended vaccinations of the German Standing Committee on Vaccination (STIKO*). Tetanus is caused by bacteria that can penetrate the skin through tissue damage. Tetanus is triggered by the poison that these bacteria release in the body. The Robert Koch Institute provides the following information about the tetanus vaccination: "Tetanus that has been survived does not leave any immunity, therefore people should also be vaccinated after illness." The vaccination, however, only administers poisons. If the natural disease offers no protection against the disease, because it is not bacteria, but its poisons, how can the administration of poisons immunize against this poison? [5]

*The STIKO is a scientific committee at the Robert Koch Institute in Berlin that provides official recommendations for the vaccination schedules in Germany.

"Vaccination is not useful, vaccination does not protect, vaccination harms!"

Health minister, a lobbyist of the pharmaceutical industry?

ch./uh./iw. The German Minister of Health, Jens Spahn, has succeeded in introducing through law a mandatory measles vaccination in Germany. In May 2019, the medical journalist and author Hans Tolzin commented: "A measles vaccination obligation interferes very strongly with the physical integrity and co-determination rights of the family". Due to the duty of care,

Document proves: MMR vaccine causes autism gap. In 2017, a whistleblower of the US Centers for Disease Control (CDC) went public with a 20-year-old document that had previously been kept under wraps. This document proves that the MMR vaccine against measles, mumps and rubella causes autism. The authorities and heads of pharmaceutical companies had known this fact for a long time. Politicians and the media argue that citizens need to be better informed about vaccinations. But should they really do it? The fact that this document was kept under lock and key for 20 years, speaks a different language. [6]

Cells of aborted babies in vaccine gpa. In German-speaking countries it is largely unknown that the cells of aborted babies (fetuses) are used for the production of some vaccines. The vaccine is contaminated with foreign DNA. Stem cell researcher Theresa Deisher explains the dangers of these DNA fragments in the body: After a measles vaccination, up to 5 nanograms, after a measles/mumps/rubella vaccination even up to 175 nanograms of "foreign DNA fragments" per ml of human DNA can be found in children. Experiments with mice revealed a change in their genetic make-up after injection of foreign-mouse DNA. In addition to genetic damage, so-called "cross-reactivity" can also occur. This means that the body begins to form antibodies against the body's own DNA fragments. From an ethical point of view alone, the cells of aborted babies should not get into vaccines, but for the sake of our children's health they must especially not be contained. [7]

Jens Spahn should provide for sufficient individual vaccines, which are however not available according to Tolzin. Available in Germany are only triple or four-fold vaccines (measles, mumps, rubella or these three plus chickenpox). If a child has already experienced mumps, rubella or chickenpox, an additional vaccination against these pathogens represents a completely unnecessary risk from the point of view of conventional medicine. It could even be that the existing protection is weakened, which would be associated with an increased risk of infection and disease. Is Mr Spahn really concerned about the health of our children or is he not proving to be more of a lobbyist for the pharmaceutical industry? [9]

Closing Point •
Dr. Robert Mendelssohn, author and professor of pediatrics, states in his book "How to raise a healthy child in spite of your doctor" about vaccinations:
"The greatest threat of childhood diseases lies in the dangerous and ineffectual efforts made to prevent them through mass immunization."
Pass this issue on along to friends so that they can form their own opinions about vaccinations.
